Another Kick.

In view of the atterty demoralized con dition of the Democratic party it seems ead to add anything to the numerous lements of discord that are already dragging the party down to: defeat, but the National Committee in turning the cold shoulder upon New York has established another grievance. Let New York exhibit a proper resentment and a worthy self-respect. The Democratic party in its present overwhelming tude of probable success may not need the votes of the Empire State; it proudly boasted that it could have won at the last election without that despised aid, and now it may rely on those thoroughly faithful Democratic States, Ohio and Illuois, and draw its manicial contributions from that loyal city of St. Louis.

Mayor Snow's Somersault. There can no longer be any doubt who gance. is running the Mayor's office. Editor Base pulls the string and Mayor Snow does the rest. When the City Conneil passed the resolve fixing the salary of Mayor at $1,200 Mr. Snow declared him-sect in favor of it. More than that we are reliably informed that before the resolve was introduced the matter was diecussed with the Mayor who approved the act and on the strength of his exdorsement it was presented and passed by the City Council. The Mapor was in favor of the resolve then and it one can sell anything by his permian vito mea sage he is in favor of it now, but Edite 4-8 said vero and verous is. The Mayor altempts to expuse his comercialt on th ground of public opinion, but when the business men very penerally pericloned for a fire alarm striker for the new City Hall it was necessary for the City Coun-cil to pass the order over his veto, show ing that his regard for public opinion was not so great then as now. The simple fact is that the Mayor gave his approval to the order indreasing the salary without consultation with Editor Bass and reverses himself in obedience to the order is sued from the pec of the latter. It is a curious performance and not only leaves the Mayor subject to the criticism of acting in bad faith toward, the members of the City Council, but apparently demonstrates the fact that the Mayor's office is really located on Main street in stead of at the City Hell.

A Orime Against Humanity.

The Chicago Inter thean says: We no longer hear the free trader glibly asserting that the importation of European manufactures will benefit the American farmer by iccreasing the demand for his produces, and thus raising the price for them. Nor do we bear him assuring the American workman that the decrease of his wages will be more than compensated by the cheapness of what his wages purby the cheappears of what his wages purchase. Nor do we hear him telling the MAINE CENTRAL RAILROAD. American manufacturer that what he leses in the home market will be made up for by opening "the markets of the world." All those fictions have crumbled under touch of the harsh finger of experience. The two last are contradictions in terms, for if the cheapened prices were in ratio to the decreased wages the value of the home market would be unimpaired. The profit on each sale would be less, but the increase of sales would even up the loss of per

But, relegating their sopLisms to the limbo from which no American will dare to drag them during the next decade, we proceed to demolish the sickly, and indoed rotten, pretense of humanitarianiam that pleads for the British workman in preference to the American. It is said by certain gentiemen, that if the American worknen suffer his British brother is relieved by free trade. The station, connecting at Burnlam for Bellant. 1.40 P.M.—Flying Yankee, with through Parkaid St. Paul, "that careth not for his own household is worse thus an indiget."

12.30 M.—Mirdel, for Waterville and way station, connecting at Burnlam or Stellant, 1.40 P.M.—Flying Yankee, with through Parkaid Care through Parkaid Care through the property of the prop own household is worse than an infilel." The American wage earner is part of the American household.

But it smaply is false that the British workman prospers when the American suffers. The suffered demand for labor in British textile factories has not brought the standard of British wages to living rates. In proof of this we quote from a letter of J. L. Broadbent & Co., worsted spinners of Bradford, England, to the president of the guardians of the poor for Shellel.:

Sit: Work is very plentiful in this district, and we can find saintable work for girls and young women from 13 to 10 years of age. The mills are under this inspection of her Mojesty's inspector of factories, the sanitation and the amount of fresh sir, with suitable warmth, are among the things which we control. The work is easy to learn, and does not require great exertion. It is also well paid for, according to the degree of producteer, from 8: 6d. to 12: 63, and in some few cases even more per week. We are owners of several cuttages, and are proposing to obtain from some workholdses twelve or twenty girls and have a marion to look after teem. She would buy in and cook, and they would be expected to do some household work in the evening. Those girls who have not passed the fifth standard could only work ball time and! they were 14 years of age. Have you any girls you could send? If not, have you any children (female) who have passed the third standard, and who could work half three and go to school the other half day? (They would have to be passed by your doctor and ours. We could not take Romag Catholics. How much per week would you contribute toward their maintensance?

The guardians of the panper children are asked to furnish a number of other wards to the Broadbeats, and to contribute to their support, while they work "half time" for that enterprising firm, whose goods, by kind permission of Cleveland, Wilson & Co., are imported to the United States at prices that no Amerlean can compete with. The infamy of the Wilson tariff is superlative.

But what are the rates of wages offered to skilled workmen by the Broadbents? Four shillings (81.75) to 12s 61 (82.57) per week. This is the measure of bene-fit that destruction of I nited States industries confers upon the British work-

We leave, for the present, the deadly adulteration of woolen goods by shoddy that the Wilson law has effected. Leglons of fevers and cohorts of rhaumatic pains guard the cheep and nesty invasion that the Wilson toriff has invited. We state the case none too strongly when we characterize the operation of the Wilson tariff as a crime against the ag-gregate of humanity.

It will be observed that nearly three-fourths of the total amount carried by the bill is for expenses of United States courte. This deficiency was deliberately, knowingly and wilfully created by the last Congress. No recret was made of it, and the only excuse offered for it was "custom" and "usage." Gamez Affacks: Boundary of Province of Object is to Develop Industries at the Matazzas but is Beaten off.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Jan. 4. (Special correspondence of the United Press.)—A good deal of excitement is now shown here with regard to the boundary dispute and the cable company's office where the public telegrams are posted daily, presents quite an animated appearance. Here and there groups of men assemble and discuss every scrap of in-telligence which comes to hand, while nany of the principal merchants have the messages copied as soon as it is possible to gain access to the board on which the bulletins are posted.

At the opening of the legislative session, on the third inst., the administrator referred to the boundary question in the most guarded terms. He said: 'The court at its meeting on November 1st of last year, with praiseworthy liberality and wisdom, undertook to provide the funds necessary in case of emersenty to ensure, as far as was in the power of this colony, the security of its borders and the maintenance of peace and order within its rightful posses-sions, and an undertaking was given by and order within its rightful possessions, and an undertaking was given by me in the name of the government, that only in case of necessity would use be made of that vote.

"In communicating the result of the cours deliberate action to the secretary of state this was clearly set out and the position of affairs was held to necessitat a certain addition to the police force and its armament. The orders have, therefore, been received and issued to this of feet and on two separate occasions has the minister expressed his satisfaction at the action taken by this homerable court. "Members will, I trust, they the events which have takeh place since the votewas passed as rendering it unnecessary and expedient for the present at all events, for this government to maintain a certain reserve in treating this matter, and while I assure them that the government will, as soon as possible, give them more explicit particulars in this consection I would appeal to the sound sense and good judgment which characterizes their deliberations to continue the confidence they have so willingly extended to the administration on the assurance that it will be most carefully respected." The subject was then allowed to drop.

The following day Col. McInn as inspection of the secretary of state for the colonies. Col. McInnes is accompanied by Lieut. Within the past few days some eighty additional constables have been drafted from Georgetown to the northwest district of the contested territory and the needical officers are now engaged in passing another hundred of the military p disferce, for service within the disputed territory.

What Victoria Could Do a matter of fact, our sovereigns As a matter of fact, our sovereigns have rarely taken any active part in politics since George III's time, but they could still do some very astonishing things if they chose. The queen could dismiss every Tommy Atkins in our army, from the commander in chief to the youngost drummer bay. She could dishand the navy in the same way, and sell all our ships, stores and arsends to the first customer that came along. Acting entirely on her own renals to the first customer that came along. Acting entirely on her own responsibility, she could declare war against any foreign country, or make a present to any foreign power of any part of the empire. She could make every man, woman and ohild in the country a peer of the realm, with the right, in the case of males who are of age, to a sent in the house of lords.

With a single word she could dismiss

With a single word she could dismiss any government that happened to be in nower, and could, it is believed, purdon and liberate all the criminals in our julis. These ure a few of the things the queen could do if she liked, but it is not necessary to say that her majesty nover acts in matters of state except on the advice of the government for the time being.—London Tit-Bits.

law him once or twice in my life, but this is many years ago, and in military matters of the magnitude involved in the supreme command of a great army I am afraid I should prove an incompe tent critic. But I believe to a great ex tent in physiognomy, and if Viscount Wolseley be not a very clever man be night to bring an action for libel against his face, for he looks decidedly clever. If there were any doubt in my mind about his ability, it ivould be set at rest by the not very enthusiastic remarks in connection with his appointment I read the effective work of the Warren filter. in one or two French newspapers. "You are an irritable people, envious, jealcus and proud to a degree," said Bismarck to General de Wimpffen on Sept. 1, over the country and good reports are 1870. You are an irritable people, on vious, jealous and proud to a degree, he repeated. "You were under the imression that victory is an appendage which was exclusively reserved to you."

The cost of putting in the filter difference in that respect in the French It may not be altogother uninterest ing to look at the two men against whom the English commander in chief will be pitted if a quarrel should ever unhappily break forth in Europe. I am alluding to the commanders in chief of the Russian and the French forces.

The Russian army contains several men of unquestionable capacity; nevertheless, there appears to be a consensur of opinion that, in the event of war, with no matter whom, the supreme command would virtually develve upon General Obrontcheff, to the exclusion eyen of General Konropatkine. I say virtual command, for, nominally, young Nicholas would be at the head of his

Having declared myself at the outset incapable of judging the English com-mander in chief from a military point of view, I am not going to stuffify myself by endeavoring to do this in the case of Obroutcheff. I only repeat what I have heard. Until very recently the chief of Vannowski's staff and Aid-de camp General Obroutcheff was, in spite of his recognized falents, looked askance at in Russian military circles. The epithet "red" was invariably tacked to his name as late as 15 years ago, and the third section of the imperial chanthe third section of the imperial chan-cellerie, without troubling to inquire into the matter, placed him on the list of "dangerous" men "to be watched very closely." A note like that from the Russian police becomes practically indelible, and, aid-de-camp general though he was, not the slightest attent was made to efface his, mame from th list. After his exploits on the Danube Loris Melikoff drew the attention of Alexander 11 to this apparently flagrant injustice, to this permanent insult. The all that, but the crithet was changed from "red" into "well meaning." Obrontcheff has married a Frenchwoman, and is a declared partisan—or supposed to be—of an alliance with France. His views in that respect date from 1870, when he was an obscura general. I repeat, about his abilities there is little or no doubt. After the first checks in the Turke Russian can paign he was sent in hot haste to the Danube, and he is credited with having saved the Russian army from total de-struction. Before that, though, he had already become the intimate friend of the heir to the throne, and the friendship underwent no diminution during Saussier, I should say, has had more fighting than any general in the French army, but it would be rush to say that this made him a strategist. The modern astronomical principle on which stars are classified—namely, the resemblance and difference between their spectra—and the revelations characterizing this remarkable phenomenon, have led to various attempts to indicate the stage of advancement attained by each particular orb in its life's history or development. Romarking upon this a recent writer cites Dr. Schelner as putting, in his late work on stellar spectroscopy, those stars whose spectra contain the bright lines of helium and hydrogen in the first subdivision of his first class in evolution. Beta Lyre and Gamina Cassiope being two such stars. He regards them as having atmospheres composed of these gases, courrously actenive as compared with those of other stars and possibly hotter than the gaseous envelopes of their older companions. On the basis of this theory the query is considered partinent as to hely long it may be since our world was in the condition of Beta Lyre, whether any helium now decate in our outer atmosphere, how that partioular portion which is now embedded in the cartiv's crust got there, and other similar questions.—Now York Sun.
